NxTech delivers Real Time Bridging for The Cincinnati Insurance Companies

Cincinnati, Ohio (July 19, 2007) – NxTech, Incorporated, a leading provider of real-time interfaces, system integration, data management and interactive web development has completed the implementation of Commercial Lines Real-Time Bridging for The Cincinnati Insurance Companies.

Real-Time bridging provides Cincinnati's independent agents the ability to submit Property, General Liability, Business Auto, Business Owners Package and Workers Compensation applications from their Applied Systems and AMS Services agency management systems to the Cincinnati rating systems. Cincinnati and its IT partners implemented real time under the name CinciBridge™ for both their current commercial lines rating system, as well as their latest rating and issuance system. The NxTech solution packages each line of business as it is submitted through the industry's managed delivery services to provide the agent a full image after each line has been submitted. Also included in the solution is upfront data validation and integration with Cincinnati security procedures to insure accurate and secure processing. Once all applications have been successfully bridged, the agent is taken to the Cincinnati system to complete the rating process.

Bill Tedrick, CEO at NxTech commented, "We have worked with The Cincinnati Insurance Companies for over 20 years and take great pride in being a part of their technology strategy. CinciBridge™ and its commercial lines implementation puts CIC in a leadership position for agency technology. Long time customers are a goal for any company and a key objective of the way we do business at NxTech."

James E. Benoski, president and chief executive officer of The Cincinnati Insurance Company, said, "Our decision to offer this technology gives us another tool to further strengthen our agency relationships. CinciBridge makes it easier to do business with us by streamlining application submissions, saving time and reducing error due to duplicate entry. Agencies can leverage the information they've already entered in their agency management systems to submit applications and initiate commercial quotes, providing more efficient service. This frees their time to compete for business by providing prompt, personal and professional service."
